Cities or Villages?

A lot of people decide to move to the countryside nowadays. However, there are still many people who prefer stay in the town and say that they couldn't live anywhere else. So which place is better to live? Let's think about both of them.

I would like to start with the advantages and disadvantages of the big city life. Living in a big city has a lot of advantages. There are a lot of theatres, concerts and other entertainment. In various shopping centres and galleries you can buy whatever you want. Many big international companies have their offices in big cities, so it is much easier to find a job there. Moreover, the public transport is developed quite well, so commuting to work isn't a problem. On the other hand, there are some disadvantages of living in a big city. Cities are very crowded. What is more, the traffic is heavy. And sometimes it is very difficult to get from place to place. It may take hours! Moreover, the other disadvantage is the lack of safety.

Life in the countryside is more peaceful and slower. What is more, it is less stressful. There isn't any time pressure and the traffic conditions are better. A lot of places you may reach on foot.

The city offers a lot: there are huge buildings, skyscrapers or some historic monuments. On the other hand, in the countryside there are a lot of breathtaking places such as forests, lakes or mountains. Moreover, people in the countryside are quite different from people living in the city: they are relaxed, friendly and family-oriented. People in the city are always in hurry, busy and out of time. In the country people enjoy lives and take pleasure in their daily activities.

To sum up I would like to say that both countryside and cities have some advantages and disadvantages.

Healthy Lifestyle

The number of people who are at risk of serious health problems due to being overweight is increasing.

What is the reason for the growth in overweight people in society?

How can this be solved?

The World Health Organisation recently released a report that 1 in 3 11-year-olds is overweight or obese. One of the solutions to stop the growth in overweight people in society is to introduce healthy lifestyle habits from as early as possible.

A balanced diet is the key to a healthy weight. Make sure that you eat a variety of foods. It is vital to eat from all five food groups. Try to buy fresh ingredients and free-range meats. Processed food often contains a lot of additives that are not as nutritious as fresh food. Make sure you include plenty of fruit and vegetables in your diet. Modern dietitians strongly advise to eat 5 servings of fruit and vegetables every day. Try to avoid fattening food and cut down on the amount of salt and sugar you eat.

Eat moderate portions and don't be tempted to order a larger meal when eating out. Restaurants often serve portions that are enough for two or three people. Children should be getting smaller portions than adults. Make sure you eat regularly and don't skip meals, this can help you to moderate snacking and control your appetite. If you have a food allergy, you don't need to completely eliminate your favourite foods. Do check the food labels properly and avoid any of the ingredients that can make your condition worse.

Regular physical activity is also a crucial part of a healthy life. Exercise keeps you feeling good and helps you maintain a healthy weight.

To summarise, following a healthy eating plan can help you prevent obesity. It is therefore vital to include the right types of food in your everyday diet and to exercise daily.

- 2. What do you do to avoid health problems?*

Ex. 1. Read and translate the interview about travelling. Do you agree with the main ideas of the interviewee?

Do you like travelling?

Yes, definitely! I think seeing the world, from great historical monuments to white sandy beaches, is what life is all about. It's a very interesting way to learn about new cultures and explore new places.

What is your favourite type of holiday?

I really like going to the countryside, getting away from it all. Nothing relaxes me as much as wilderness... I am tired of tourist traps and usually go off the beaten track...

What do you do on holidays?

I prefer visiting various museums and places of interest. For instance, on my last vacation I was to Rome and I visited 12 museums. It was fantastic! Of course, sometimes I go shopping with my friends or relatives too... But I don't find it nearly as exciting...

Are there many tourists visiting your country?

Probably yes... My country has different tourist attractions in many cities, especially the capital... For example, my country has old-time religious traditions... That's why we have a lot of ancient cathedrals and churches that are interesting for both tourists and local citizens...

5 Best Ways to Travel Around Europe

By Mike Clegg

Most countries throughout Europe have developed with tourism in mind, meaning you will find the infrastructure in place which helps both travellers and those living there. If you're wondering how to get from one city to the next, how to travel between European countries, or just how to see some of the rural areas then keep reading. Here you'll find some of the best ways to travel around Europe.

1. Take a Bus

A very cheap way to travel around Europe, including between cities, or across borders is using the bus. You'll find various bus companies available including Flixbus and Regiojet which offer very cheap and competitive fares.

This type of travel is good for medium distances, such as up to 12 hours, as for longer periods you'll probably get restless and tired of sitting. However, to really save money on your Europe trip then also consider taking an overnight bus which will allow you to save on a nights accommodation. When travelling overnight it's often easier to take longer routes as you'll hopefully be asleep for most of it.

2. Catch a Train

Europe has great transport connections and this includes the railway. You will find you can get around most of Europe this way. This method of transport will often be quicker than driving or a bus, but slower than flying.

For those wanting to visit many destinations in Europe then consider a Interrail (European residents) or eurail.com (non-European residents) pass. These can (depending on your option) provide unlimited travel which is great for multi-destination trips.

3. Take a plane

Often the fastest and easiest way to travel around Europe is by plane. In Europe, you'll find heaps of budget airlines which make travelling this way that much more affordable. The cost of these fares can even be as low as £10 if you manage to book early or catch a deal.

4. Rent a car or camper

Renting a car or camper can sometimes be the most expensive option, but will give you the freedom to explore the more rural areas in Europe.

A car or camper can also be a quick option as there can often be less waiting around. You'll also be able to pack it to the brim, taking as much luggage as you like. They are also great for families and groups.

Before renting a vehicle make sure your driving license would be valid in the countries you are visiting. You should also have a read on official sites on the road laws. Such as what is the speed limit, do you drive on the left or right, do pedestrians have the right of way etc.

5. Go on a tour or cruise

For those that would like a trip where you can sit back and leave the planning to others then consider booking a tour or cruise. Some of these tours might be within the mainland such as along rivers or using roads, whilst other tours might include travelling on a cruise ship along the Mediterranean or Baltic Sea.

Which transport method is the cheapest in Europe?

There are many variables involved in estimating what's cheapest. To work out the cheapest way to travel in Europe consider these things:

Do you have lots of luggage?

Are you travelling over the weekend?

How many of you are there?

Are you travelling during peak season (i. e. summer/national holidays)?

Are you limited by time?

Which transport method is the quickest in Europe?

Often the quickest way to travel in Europe (depending on the distance) is:

Flying
Taking a train
Driving
Taking a bus
Considerations

But you should also consider these things when deciding which method is quickest:

The distance you are travelling
Check-in time at the airports, as well as passport control and collecting any baggage
Whether you could be subject to delays on the road
How many stops you may have en-route
How much waiting around will there be, such as on tours etc

London is the capital of Great Britain. It lies in the South East of England on both banks of the river Themes. London is one of the largest cities in the world and the largest port and industrial town in England. London is more than twenty centuries old.

The heart of the capital is the City. The territory of the City is only about one square mile, but it is the financial and business center of the country. It contains almost all important English banks and offices.

The West End of London is famous for its beautiful monuments and palaces, fine parks, fashionable shops and big hotels. The East End is quite different from the West End. The Russian Federation

The Russian Federation is the largest country in the world. It occupies about one-seventh of the earth's surface. It covers the eastern part of Europe and the Northern part of Asia. Its total area is about 17 million square kilometers. The country is washed by 12 seas of 3 oceans: the Pacific, the Arctic and the Atlantic. In the south Russia borders on China, Mongolia, Korea, Kazakhstan, Georgia and Azerbaijan. In the west it borders Norway, Finland, the Baltic States, Belorussia, the Ukraine. It also has a sea-border with the USA.

There is hardly a country in the world where such a variety of scenery and vegetation can be found. We have steppes in the south, plains and forests in the midland, tundra and taiga in the north, highlands and deserts in the east.

There are two great plains in Russia: the Great Russian Plain and the West Siberian Lowland.

There are several mountain chains on the territory of the country: the Urals, the Caucasus, the Altai and others. The largest mountain chain, the Urals, separates Europe from Asia.

There are over two million rivers in Russia. Europe's biggest river, the Volga, flows into the Caspian Sea. The main Siberian rivers – the Ob, the Yenisei and the Lena – flow from the south to the north. The Amur in the Far East flows into the Pacific Ocean.

Russia is rich in beautiful lakes. The largest lakes are Lake Peipus, Lake Khanka, Lake Ladoga, Lake Onega. The world's deepest lake (1,600 metres) is Lake Baikal. It is much smaller than the Baltic Sea, but there is much more water in it than in the Baltic Sea. The water in the lake is so clear that if you look down you can count the stones on the bottom.

Russia has one-sixth of the world's forests. They are concentrated in the European north of the country, in Siberia and in the Far East.

On the vast territory of the country there are various types of climate, from arctic in the north to subtropical in the south. In the middle of the country the climate is temperate and continental.

Russia is very rich in oil, coal, iron ore, natural gas, copper, nickel and other mineral resources.

Russia is a parliamentary republic. The Head of State is the President. The legislative powers are exercised by the Duma.

The capital of Russia is Moscow. It is its largest political, scientific, cultural and industrial centre. It is one of the oldest Russian cities.

At present, the political and economic situation in the country is rather complicated. There are a lot of problems in the national economy of the Russian Federation. The industrial production is decreasing. The prices are constantly rising, the rate of inflation is very high. People are losing their jobs because many factories and plants are going bankrupt.

But in spite of the problems Russia is facing at present, there are a lot of opportunities for this country to become one of the leading countries in the world. I'm sure that we, the younger generation, can do very much to make Russia as strong and powerful as it used to be.

A. The world's deepest lake, the Baikal, is in Siberia. It is also the largest freshwater lake in Eurasia and the oldest lake on the Earth. At least 1,500 unique species live there - they cannot be found anywhere else on the planet! The water in the lake is so clear that if you drop a coin, it can be clearly seen a hundred feet below the water.

B. People who live in the Baikal region believe that it's a unique and mysterious place. According to them, the water from Lake Baikal can cure different illnesses, gives you strength and clears your mind. They also say that the lake was formed millions of years ago when a huge, hot rock fell to earth. It melted the ice around and that was how Lake Baikal appeared. The story about the meteorite has, however, never been proved by scientists.

C. The lake has also become famous for its unique fish and birds that are not found in other waters. The lake is home to more than 1000 animal species. Among them there are the world's only freshwater seals. There's no evidence of how the seals got to the lake, but they obviously enjoy their life there. Huge brown bears often come to the lake out of the forest to hunt and fish.

D. Though Lake Baikal is located in a very remote place, and is difficult to reach in autumn and winter, it attracts thousands of visitors every year. A chance to see this unique place is worth the long journey! On the banks of Lake Baikal, you can stay in a modern, comfortable hotel, take part in hiking tours and enjoy the untouched natural beauty. People who have visited Lake Baikal once want to return to the place again and again.

E. However, the growing popularity of the lake and the industrial development of the region have caused ecological problems. The safety of this unique natural ecosystem has been discussed at an international level. Now Lake Baikal is on the list of heritage sites protected by UNESCO. A federal state law about the conservation of the lake was also supported in Russia.

F. The lake attracts not only tourists but also many wildlife researchers, biologists and even archaeologists. The world-famous explorer and scientist, Jacques Cousteau, and his team spent lots of time studying the deep waters of Lake Baikal. They also shot a film about their research that was broadcast by major TV channels all over the world.

G. Everyone considers the Siberian climate very severe, which is perfectly true for the Baikal region. The winters there are really freezing - the average temperature is as low as -25 degrees Celsius. Due to its location in the middle of the continent, the place is characterized by a sharp contrast between winter and summer temperatures. The summers are generally cool, with a few hot days. The sun shines brightly above the lake till late autumn.

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL TRADE

A wholesale dealer acquires the merchandise directly from the industry. A wholesale dealer usually has a department store with plenty of storage space and an office with employees to transact the purchase of the goods along with their subsequent sale. They make offers and receive orders, they write bills and receipts, constantly control storehouse supplies and take care of timely delivery of goods.

Wholesale dealers often have sales representatives who visit clientele of retail dealers, give them advice about the purchase of old and new merchandise and haul in the biggest possible orders for their companies. A wholesale dealer should save a lot of money since it is customary that he has to pay his suppliers in advance.

A retail dealer needs neither so much storage space nor so much money. Therefore his profit is not that high. But he needs an attractive store where his merchandise is exhibited so that the customers want to buy it. And the service should be fast and friendly. He must have enough supply in order not to disappoint and lose his customers.

Wholesale and retail dealers stand between the producer or the industry and the consumer. Therefore they are also called intermediaries. Their services cost the consumers a lot of money, so there are certain attempts to get along without them. For instance, mail-order houses sell the merchandise directly to the consumer. Even so, they have to pay (directly or indirectly) for shipping and handling of the goods (like postage and packaging). Moreover, many customers send back the ordered merchandise, either for the reason that it does not fit or because there is some mistake or it does not comply to their expectations.

2. What do the employees in a merchant's office do?
3. What are the duties of a sales representative?
4. Why does a wholesale dealer need more funds and more storage space than a retail dealer?

Ex. 1. Read the text about banks. Translate words in bold into Russian. Use them in sentences of your own.

Types of Banks

During the last three centuries different types of banks have developed. Each type usually specializes in a particular kind of business.

1. Commercial Banks

These banks play the most important role in modern economic organisation. Their business mainly consists of receiving deposits, giving loans and financing the trade of a country. They provide short-term credit, i.e., lend money for short periods. This is their special feature.

2. Exchange Banks

Exchange banks finance mostly the foreign trade of a country. Their main function is to discount, accept and collect foreign bills of exchange. They also buy and sell foreign currencies and help businessmen to convert their money into any foreign money they need. Their share in the internal trade of a country is usually small. In addition, they carry on ordinary banking business too.

3. Industrial Banks

These banks perform the function of advancing loans to industrial undertakings. Industries require capital for a long period for buying machinery and equipment. Industrial banks provide this type of capital. Industrial banks have a large capital of their own. They also receive deposits for longer periods. They are thus in a position to advance long-term loans.

4. Agricultural or Co-operative Banks

The main business of agricultural banks is to provide funds to farmers. They are worked on the co-operative principle. Long-term capital is provided by land mortgage banks, nowadays called land-development banks, while short-term loans are given by co-operative societies and co-operative banks. Long-term loans are needed by the farmers for purchasing land or for permanent improvements on land, while short-period loans help them in purchasing implements, fertilizers and seeds.

5. Savings Banks

These banks perform the useful service of collecting small savings. Commercial banks too run “savings departments” to mobilise the savings of people of small means. The idea is to encourage thrift and discourage hoarding.

6. Central Banks

Apart from the banks mentioned above, today there exists in almost all countries a Central Bank. It is usually controlled and quite often owned by the government of the country.

Utility of Banks

An efficient banking system is absolutely necessary for a country, if it is to progress economically. Undeveloped banking system is not only an index of economic backwardness of a country, it is also an important cause of it. The banking system can be useful in the following ways, in addition to what has been mentioned:

(i) The banks create instruments of credit.

(ii) The banks increase the mobility of capital. They bring the borrowers and the lenders together. They collect money from those who cannot use it, and give it to those who can. Thus, they help the movement of funds from place to place, and from person to person, in a very convenient and inexpensive manner.

(iii) They provide safe channels of investment. In the absence of banking facilities, people would just squander their funds.

(iv) By encouraging savings, the banks bring about accumulation of large amount of capital in the country from small individual savings. In this way, they make the resources of the country more productive, and thus contribute to the general prosperity and welfare of the country.

Top 4 Functions of Banks

Function # 1. Collection of the Savings of the Community

Nowadays people do not keep their savings at home. They deposit them in banks. Thereby the risk of loss (from theft, etc.) is avoided. Moreover, some interest is earned. There are different kinds of deposits. Some are current deposits.

The interest paid on such deposits is either very small or nil. Some deposits are withdrawable after a fixed period (one year, two years, etc.). Such deposits are called time deposits. Time deposits earn higher rates of interest.

Function # 2. Loans and Investment

Banks lend money to traders, industrialists and other persons. Lending is done through a variety of methods. Sometimes an account is opened in the name of the borrower and he is allowed to draw cheques on it. A person having an account may be given the right to draw more money than what he has in the account. This is known as overdraft facility.

Banks invest money on shares and debentures of companies. Loans are also given to private individuals against shares, debentures, life insurance policies, and gold.

Function # 3. Creation of Money:

Formerly banks could print and issue notes. Nowadays only the central bank of the country can issue notes. Banks, however, can give loans in excess of the money deposited with them. Cheques can be drawn against such loans and the cheques can be used as media of exchange. Thus, banks can create money.

Function # 4. Other Functions

Commercial banks perform various other functions. For example, they keep valuables in safe custody: shares, debentures, etc. They also act as executors and trustees of wills; and exchange currencies of different countries for one another.

Pollution Solutions

Adapted from the “Pollution Solutions” article by L. Prescott, which appeared in Ranger Rick magazine

Air Care

Worldwide, the stinky problem of pollution has grown. More and more factories, cars, and trucks add their bad breath to the air. But the battle against air pollution is also growing. Many U.S. cities still have dirty air. So, most states are making tougher laws against air pollution. And scientists are looking for ways to make factories and cars run cleaner.

Cleaner Rain?

Chemicals called sulfates puff out of coal-burning factories around the world. When the sulfates mix with clouds, acid rain falls and harms lakes, rivers and plants and the creatures that need them. Also, the wind blows the air around. So, sulfates from one place can fall as acid rain many miles away. The good news is that many countries are working hard to end acid rain. Scientists are figuring out ways to make coal burn more cleanly. And in many parts of North America, the number of sulfates in the air has dropped. So less acid rain is falling!

Dirty Water?

Nearly half of the lakes in North America are polluted. Often, companies dump chemical wastes into water. But scientists are finding a solution to this problem, too.

Some rivers have been made much cleaner. And there are big plans to clean up the Great Lakes, the Chesapeake Bay, the Mississippi River, and other bodies of water.

Good Energy News

When we burn coal and oil for energy, we cause pollution. But little by little we're getting more energy from the sun and the wind. This energy is clean and renewable (that means we'll never run out of it). Energy from the sun now helps heat and light more than 100,000 homes in the United States. More good news: many electric companies have discovered that saving energy is better than making more energy.

So, they can send experts to homes in the U.S. to look for energy “leaks” – places where energy is being wasted. Everyone needs to have his/her home checked for leaks.

Poisons In Food

Farmers often spray chemicals on crops to protect them against pests. These chemicals are called pesticides. Scientists have found that pesticides often end up in our food. Pesticides can cause health problems – especially for kids. But here's the good news: the U.S. government is helping farmers find ways to protect crops without using many pesticides.

Cleaner Cars

Cars are the world's biggest air polluters. But scientists are trying to invent cars that pollute less. Farmers in Illinois are trying a fuel in their tractors made from soybeans. And there are electric minivans being used in at least six U.S. cities.

Trash

In 1993, each person in the United States threw away about four pounds (1.8 kg) of trash daily. Put it all together and you'd fill 45,000 trash trucks every day! About 1/3 of this waste comes from packaging. But here's a bit of good news. Some companies have begun to use less packaging. And lots of U.S. cities have started recycling projects. In these ways we've begun making less trash. Everyone should look at what they throw away and try to throw away less.

So, dear world, you may be covered with dirt and gasping for air. But many people are working hard to fix you, and many kids are rooting for you, too. By the time these kids have grown up, you may do your clean old self again!

Computers in Modern Life: Convenience or Stress?

Some people have a strong belief that computers are a crucial achievement. Lack of time. They make contemporary life much more convenient and exciting. However, there is also another opinion that computing devices and IT technologies bring much stress in routine and make life more complicated. My point of view is that computers really make people feel under pressure. However, benefits that come from clever machines are obvious in all spheres of life. Nearly all people like comfort and modern conveniences and can hardly imagine their life without them.

All processes in business and private spheres have been immensely computerized for the last ten years. Machines control accountancy, payments, reporting, production and trading activities, etc. Everybody knows that time is one of the most valuable resources ("Time is money"). Thus, companies widely use computers to optimize all activities and plan outputs. This leads to the intensification of the work, which inadvertently puts employees into a state of complete exhaustion. Lack of time for rest and recreation may lead to stress and even nervous breakdown.

Moreover, mobile information technologies and broad Internet coverage make people reachable in any place and any hour of the day. In some cases, they have to answer emails and messages while staying with family, going shopping or doing sports. It may cause quarrels, misunderstandings and tiredness, which are extremely stressful.

However, there is no doubt that intellectual machines and their derivatives are very useful. A big amount of data can be stored in electronic format with their help. Thus, documents, presentations, reports, books, computer games, songs and movies do not need any paper, packages, shelves devices and special premises. A tiny gadget is an indispensable thing for travelling and business trips. Moreover, cloud technologies make it possible to store and manage millions of documents in a very efficient way. Traditional businesses are getting more virtualized and their profitability and safety steady increase.

Furthermore, social networks, charts and messengers provide quick communication and files exchange all over the world. Internet users have many possibilities for finding friends and partners. They share their ideas through blogs, speak and see each other with the help of video chats and create business platforms to make money. Virtual world is the progress and development needed for humanity.

In addition, people become accustomed to making purchases of goods and services with the help of computers. They buy gadgets, and clothes in the internet shops, reserve hotels and book tickets on the specialized websites, receive money for doing some job on the internet platforms. All that can be done at home from a desktop computer or in a café from a smartphone, iPad or tablet. All these gadgets are affordable for a big number of people on the planet. Internet services are mainly unified and easy for use.

Finally, mobile applications offer such interactive services as a virtual secretary, navigator, and voice translator. They are helpful in getting the necessary information in real time. Tourists can easily find a location of the nearest restaurant, shopping center or museum on the interactive map. They can also follow their way using the on-line navigator. Simple phrases immediately translated in a language of the visited country may be crucial in avoiding misunderstandings. Voice reminders that come from a smartphone make life more organized and safe.

To sum up, computers make people's life tense and hectic. Time for rest is reduced whereas control is strengthened. However, computers and IT applications provide global communication, advanced business opportunities and an immediate access to information. Modern world cannot be efficient without all these conveniences.

Alexander Popov, the First Inventor of the Radio

Today, when powerful radio stations transmit the latest news all over the globe, and the remotest corners of the world have the possibility to listen in, we realize how great is the name of Alexander Popov, the first inventor of the radio.

At this time an Italian, Marconi, began making the same kind of experiments. He already knew about Popov's experiments, and as he was a businessman he plagiarized Popov's ideas to make money out of them. He wanted to show he was the first inventor of the radio. His mother was an Englishwoman. She recommended him to go to England.

The greatest scientists of the city were present at that meeting. Popov made a report about the results of his work and demonstrated the first radiograms in the world.

After his report the government gave him permission to make his experiments on board a small ship. And that was all. Again he had to work without any help.

Popov died in 1905.

He packed his apparatus and in spring, 1896, left Italy for London. In London he found the protection of rich businessmen and the English government, so that in June, 1897, he received a patent for his invention and organized a commercial company named "The London Commercial Company of Marconi's Wireless". This English company wanted to keep Popov in the background and gave ten thousand roubles to a Russian newspaper which often printed articles about Marconi's work.

It was about 100 years ago. At that time electrical engineering was a new science. Popov took great interest in electricity and began to work at it. He made experiments with electric waves. But his work went on under very hard conditions. He had neither money nor special equipment for his numerous experiments. But in spite of all difficulties Popov did not stop his experiments. He spent all his money on his work and made many parts of his equipment with his own hands.

While the great Russian inventor lived and worked under very hard conditions, Marconi's company already had a capital of 2,000,000 roubles.

It was only in 1899 that Popov could build a radio station. This was the first radio station in the world.

On the 24th of March, 1896 a meeting took place in one of the auditoriums of the Petersburg University.

In August 1903 Popov took part in the work of the first International Conference on the Wireless. Marconi was also present at this conference, and tried to prove that he was the inventor of the radio. But the French scientist Bourdulong protested against this. He got up and spoke about Popov and his great invention.

In 1904, during the Russian-Japanese war, the government realized the importance of the wireless. Ships could communicate at long distances only by means of the radio. Then the government gave money and was ready to supply Popov with all the necessary equipment. But as it was wartime and there were no instruments and no specialists in Russia, it was quite impossible to do anything.

A few years after Popov's death, the Russian Physical Society set up a commission to settle the question of Popov's invention. This commission stated that Popov was the first inventor of the radio.
